Childhood obesity has become a real epidemic in our country today. Almost 10% of children less than 5 years old are overweight.

Children need about 60 minutes of physical activity a day, but many exercise as little as 2 times a week or less, according to scientific studies.

"Tomorrows Stars" is a fitness based program that can help prevent childhood obesity with nutritional information and physical fitness.

On Mondays & Tuesdays, your child will be working on specialized pre-school equipment, jumping on our tumble-trak, and exercising to music. We will be using props to develop skills such as hand-eye coordination, foot-eye coordination, gross and fine motor skills that aid in reading readiness.

In Glenn Doman's book, "Teaching Your Baby to Read", he says that many gross motor skills used in preschool gymnastics, help children learn to read.

Our lessons will also incorporate activities to teach children about "sometimes foods" and everyday "eat healthy, foods".

Physical development is as important as social and mental development. With "Tomorrows Stars" Pre School curriculum, your child will receive a well rounded education.
